RADIUM CLOCK IS DEVISED.

Englishman Constructs Curious Timepiece Which It Is Expected Will Run 30,000 Years.

Harrison Martindale, an Englishman, has constructed a radium clock, which will keep time indefinitely.

The clock comprises a small tube, in which is placed a minute quantity of radium supported in an exhausted glass vessel by a quartz rod. To the lower end of the tube, which is colored violet by the action of the radium, an electroscope formed of two long leaves or stripes of silver is attached.

A charge of electricity in which there are no beta rays is transmitted through the activity of the radium into the leaves, and the latter thereby expand until they touch the sides of the vessel, connected to earth by wires, which instantly conduct the electric charge, and the leaves fall together.

This simple operation is repeated incessantly every two minutes until the radium is exhausted, which in this instance it is computed will occupy 30,-000 years.

That old Creek Indian medal, which is supposed to be the seal of a treaty between the British and the Indians, made more than a century ago, has again leaped into prominence and threatens to cause

There is a clan of Creeks who want to go to Mexico, and they have sold the medal to a white man in order to raise money to send a delegation there to se-"lect their homes

The history of the loss of the medal to the Creeks was obtained from an old Indian, and is as follows:

For many years this medal and a certain secret parchment sewed up in a buckskin case was in the keeping of Takapatche Micco. He grew old and desired to place the precious mementoes in the hands of some other person. He called together five of the leading men of his clan and for three days they debated this

There were two candidates-Charles Gibson and Tobe Berryhill-both of were kinsmen of the old Indian. Tobe Berryhill had gone north (joined the union army) in the civil war and Gibson had gone south Three of the five assembled had also gone north, and that won for Berryhill. He kept the medal for a long time.

Some months ago a movement was started among the Creeks to move to Mexico. Berryhill was an enthusiastic advocate of this plan. Date after date for a convention to elect delegates to go and select their new home was set, but for some reason it was not held. It later developed that the reason for this was that there was no money to defray the expenses of the delegates and none would agree to go

Finally, Berryhill took the old medal to J. M. Hoyt, of Henryetta, I. T., and told him to sell it, and the money would be used to send the delegation to Mexico Hoyt took the medal under promise of secrecy as to where he got it and showed it to some newspaper men, who exploit-

The Snake Indians heard that Hoyt had the medal, and they called a meeting, and Hoyt was put in the sweat box. He barely escaped trouble. But he did not reveal where the medal was. He finaly sold it to William Gentry, of Checotah, I. T., for $700. This money was turned over to the Creeks, and they immediately pulled off a convention and selected three delegates to go to Mexico, and Berryhill was one.

The Snake clan of Indians claim the medal as theirs by right, and there is likely to be trouble over it. Mr. Gentry promises to give the medal back into the keeping of the Creek nation if they will reimburse him.

INVENT METAL LIKE GOLD. Italian Father and Son Offered $1,-200,000 for Their Discovery-Patents Taken Out.

A new metal, which possesses many of the qualities of gold, including its color. and which can be made at one-tenth the cost of copper, has been invented by the admixture of several metals and chemicals. The discoverers are father and son, named Fabinani, and in conjunction with an Italian engineer, M. Traveglina, all residing in Florence, Italy, they worked several years before they succeeded in finding the right formula.

Having taken out patents for their discovery, they submitted specimens of the metal to capitalists in Paris and recently received from a Belgian electrical company an offer of $1,200,000 for their discovery.

The company will start a factory in Belgium and intends to use it instead of copper, principally in the manufacture of electrical wires and conduits. It is said that one of the Rothschilds is largely interested in the company.

ROOSTERS CROW FOR PRIZE

Cock-a-Doodle-Do Contest Looked Upon in Gay Paris as an Ideal Sport.

Great preparations are being made for cock-crowing competition which is to take place in Paris soon. The owners of the gay chanticleers are assiduously experimenting with their birds in order o find the best means of training them.

One man has hit upon the idea of keepng the roosters cooped up in the dark all the time and then suuddenly letting them out into the light at the hour at about which the competition is announced to take place. The birds on seeing the light think it is dawn and set up a lusty crowing, which they keep up joyously for several minutes. They are then shut up in a well aired but dark coop until the next day at the same hour. Every day the birds keep up their crowing a few seconds longer, and the proud owner hopes that he will eventually succeed in making them crow for 15 consecutive minutes, which is the time limit of the competition. Each owner has a special composition with which he feeds his birds, but meat and phosphates form a part of all. During the competition a timekeeper registers the number and notes of the cock's crow, and the bird which crows the oftenest and has the most melodious notes carries off a handsome prize. The French Bantam club has made the discovery that the best crowers are the roosters whose hens lay the best eggs, so that this bloodless but noisy mode of

All feats in pumpkin raising have been surposeed by John Weir, who owns a small garden in the farm of the Philadelphia Vacant Lots associaago Weir threw some pumpkin seeds on a steep embankment which borders his farm.

There were signs of miniature pumpkins on his vine, and to prevent them from interfering with his other vegetables he threw the vine over the top of a tree. Then he forgot all about the pumpkin vine. He was startled one day to see pumpkins appearing among the foliage of the tree. There was a big bunch of them, big and heavy, and they were bearing heavily upon the branches of the tree.

In order that they might thrive it comfort Weir built a shelf under each pumpkin, and they grew bigger and stronger until they encircled the entire tree. All together they were 30 of them. weighing, collectively, pounds. They are now getting ready to appear in a large aggregation of pumpkin pies.

Crow as Monse Catcher. William K. Huber, of Niantic, Pa., has one of the most peculiar household pets in Montgomery county. It is a crow, and is deemed the champion killer of mice and rats in Douglass township. The bird never misses its prey when it sees a mouse, and the rats have to fight for dear Afe to escape it. The Term Refers to the Average Work One Horse Can Perform in a Minuta.

What is the relative amount of work horse or machinery? At his very best the strongest man stands in pretty poor comparison, even with a horse, for hard, continuous labor. He might perform for a few minutes one-half horse-power of work, but to keep this up for any great length of time would be impossible.

Thus the gain in forcing horses to do a part of the world's work was enormous: One horse could exhaust a dozen men in a single day, and still be ready for the next day's work. According to St. Nicholas the measurement of a horse's power for work was first ascertained by Watt, the father of the modern steam engine, and he expressed this in terms that hold to-day. He experimented with a great number of heavy brewery horses to satisfy himself that his unit of measurement for work was correct. After many trials he ascertained that the average brewery horse was doing work equal to that required to raise 330 pounds of weight 100 feet high in one minute, or 33,000 pounds one foot in one minute. So he called this one horse-power. This work, however, is not continuous, for the horse would have to back up after each pull to lower the line of the pulley, and thus he would work four hours a day in pulling 330 pounds in the air at the rate of 100 feet a minute, and four hours in slacking up the rope. Consequently no horse can actually perform continuously what is generally called one horse-power. The horse was never born that could tug at a rope for eight hours a day, pulling 330 pounds 100 feet each minute without rest or change. opportunity to master telegraphy. Consequently, when we speak of horse power we refer only to the average work a horse can do in one minute, that is to say, the rate at which he can work.

A strong man might pull half that weight 100 feet in the air in two minutes, but he could not repeat the operation many times without being exhausted.

For all needful purposes the expression of one horse-pewer is accurate enough, and practically shows the measurement of an average horse's abilities for working. As a rule a strong man can in eight hours work at the rate of about one-tenth of one horse-power; that is, it would require ten men to put! 830 pounds 100 feet in the air in a minute, and then slack up and repeat the operation throughout the eight hours of a working day. The world's gain in labor when horses were first employed to help man in his work was thus tenfold.

that a man can do in comparison with a / Marvelous Stories Are Told and Believed in England of the Cures Wrought There-Blind Giri Made to See.

London (Eng.) Special. While thousands on the more fortunate of the earth are flocking from all parts of the world to continental spas to seek or recruit health, there is another army, smaller, it is true, but still numerous, of whose pilgrimage the papers tell us nothing, making its way to a Mecca in Flintshire, on a similar quest.

They are a strange crowd, of all classes and afflicted by almost every ill that flesh is heir to-the maimed, the sick, the halt, the blind-all journeying to the shrine of St. Winetride, in the little town of Holywell, near the Dee estuary, in the hope that the miraculous waters of the well may make them whole. For long centuries these waters have wrought their miracles, the blind even have found sight in them, the dumb have had their tongues loosened, and the crippled have thrown aside their crutches and leaped in the joy of their recovery; and what has happened to others may, they think, also be the happy lot of every one of these pilgrims.

St. Winefride's well had its birth nearly 13 centuries ago, and a strangely romantic story is told of its origin -how the stream gushed forth from the ground on which the murdered daughter of a Welsh chieftain, the beautiful Winefride, fell; and ever since the water has flowed, bringing healing with it, until a mere list of all the miracles it has wrought would fill volumes.

Over this wonderful well the mother of King Henry VII. built the exquisite little chapel which is shrine to-day. Beneath this chapel, in a vaulted chamber of beautiful architecture, is the well on which the sculptured figure of St. Winefride looks down from under an elaborately-carved canopy; by the side of the well is a stone on which the bathers, after leaving the water, kneel in prayer, while all around, hanging auspices of the American Federation from the roof and resting against the pillars, are crutches and other invalid appliances which the pilgrims, restored to vigor, have left behind them as votive offerings.

In a neighboring chamber is a spaclous bath surrounded with dressing- attendants in hospitals and insanrooms. Here the pilgrims bathe in the healthful waters and call on "St. Winefride, most admirable virgin, even in this unbelieving generation still miraculous," to pray for them. For 15 hours every day, but chiefly during the summer months, the pilgrims bathe in these waters, and offer up incessant petitions to St. Winefride, and on certain days the banner of the saint is carried to the well by chanting priests, followed by a long procession of pilgrims and residents. Wonderful stories are told of the miracles wrought in this small Welsh town, and, however skeptically some may regard them, they are at least entitled to a respectful reception. That marvelous cures have been wrought is beyond question, and it is the writer's duty to chronicle them, and not to attempt to explain them. In one case, so the records state, a father brought his dead child and laid it on the altar, there to rest during the night before burial. To the amazement of all, when morning came the child was found restored to life and clamoring for food.

In another case a woman whose terribly deformed by rheumatism, and who had tried all the waters of the continent in vain, was able to stand for the first time for many a year the moment she entered the waters of the Holy Well, and after two more immersions was able to walk without assistance.

A girl who had been blind from birth was restored to sight on dipping her head once in the water of the well, and a dumb child began to speak after a little of the water had been powed into his mouth. These are but samples of the miracles said to have been wrought by the well of St. Winefride; nor is the virtue due te any medicinal quality in the water, nince analysis proves that, beyond a little chalk and sulphate of lime, it contains nothing to which any healing virtue could possibly be credited.

After Struggle of Half an Hour Boy Is Exhausted and at Rooster's Mercy.

After a battle of almost half an hour with a game-rooster, Frank Spencer, 13year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. John Spencer, living north of Lafayette, Ind., was so fatigued and weak from loss of blood that he fell to the floor before the onslaught of the enraged bird and would probably have been killed had it not been for the timely arrival of his mother. The fight between the young farmer and the game chicken was the result of meddling on the part of the former.

Years ago the elder Spencer was quite a sport and raised fighting cocks for mains in different parts of the country, generally for Indianapolis people. He formerly had about 50 birds which he sent to different places, but for the past ten years has not meddled much with the chicken fighting game. He has lived on the farm for about five years and concluded that farming was a little bit better than fighting chickens, anyway.

He kept but one game rooster, having purchased it about two years ago. It was said to be a good fighter and the former chicken raiser thought he would like to have a remnant of his old life about the place. The game chicken could not be left out with the other chickens, as he refused to let any other rooster stay about the place. So "Teddy," as the rooster was called, was put in a large yard all of his own, where he could strut around and crow to his heart's delight.

The old fellow had been left alone for a long time and grew spurs about two inches long and as sharp as needles. The father had often cautioned his son against going into the coop with the rooster, declaring that game chicken would fight him the minute he entered.

The Boy thought his father was fooling and on the first opportunity crept into the yard, where Teddy was king. Teddy is a beautiful bird with long, shiny red feathers, and Frank believed that there would be no trouble. He carried a club along with him, however, and this is partly due the fact that he is at present alive. As soon as he entered the cage, Teddy was after him, using both spurs and bill in the attack. Frank used his club as best he could in the cramped quarters, but soon tired out. He then used his hands, trying to catch hold of the fowl. Teddy was in his element and dug his sharp spurs into the soft flesh of his victim with vengeance, two of the stabs going through the wrist. The boy finally fell to the floor of the cage with exhaustion. the rooster still keeping up his murderous assault.

Mrs. Spencer climbed into the cage and after a short fight with the then tired rooster, knocked him to one side, grabbed her child and managed to es-

A SOLID FRONT. Whatever may be said of the importance or propriety of a division of the colored vote on local issues, there can hardly be adduced an argument which can justify a division upon national issues. And when we come to consider the effect of local party success, especially in large cities, upon the general result in a state, we very much doubt the wisdom of dividing even upon local issues. There have been remarkable coincidences which have transpired to render this position tenable. It has happened that disaffection or division regarding local issues in a large city has produced a change in the administration of a state, which change has produced a corresponding revolution in other the National Administration. Hence we can readily see the far reaching effect of a departure from strict party lines. But, without reference to the past, certain it is that at no time in the history of the race has it been more necessary for the colored voters to stand loyally by the Republican party, both state and national, than at this time. Great issues are involved, issues the determination of which will establish our status as American citizens, co- policy which in its scope contemer would desert his wards and leave equals in the body politic and joint plates the peace, happiness and them to the mercy of the contendheirs to all of the benefits of Americlearly defined and mutually joined. That when Mr. Cleveland for Recorder of to the Constitution and favors such mandatory legislation as will render their enforcement certain and their successful violation impossible. Moreover, the Republican party stands for human progress and human rights. Consistent with its history, it favors the largest opportunities for the colored people and encourages by sympathy, moral and material support, those among the race who show a desire and determination to become intelligent and useful citizens. It does more than this. Imbued with a true Christian missionary spirit, it favors the lifting up of the ignorant masses and advocates the institution of a liberal free school system, so endowed and equipped as to make it productive of the best and highest educational results. On the other hand the Democratic party is the historic enemy of the colored race and maintains its history at the present time, with fanatical fidelity and fiendish enthusiasm. Regarding its past history, touching the treatment of the colored people, the tears, the strifes, the blood, the outrage upon female virtue, the callousness and brutality of the slave master and slave driver, the lynchngs and busings and bulldozings lations and disfranchise blot and smear its hideous and disgraceful pages. They repudiate the Amendments to the Constitution which gave to the colored people the status of free men and citizens and have boldly declared their determination to do all in their power to annul them. They have by political jugglery and highhanded unconstitutional methods, succeeded in disfranchising the great body of the colored citizens at the South. They have curtailed the educational advantages of colored people by limiting the curriculum in the common schools to the primary grades. But we do not anticipate any political prostitution or iscariotism in the ranks of colored voters. There may be some individuals in the Democratic party whom we respect and some Republicans who have not come up to the true Republican is for the supremacy of correct principles and safe and sound policies of such principles and for the surest means of securing to the colored races those rights, privileges and ity to colored ladies and gentlemen immunities which should accrue to them as political and social factors. telling a good story which has come from Rome and which deals with the octogenarian, Cardinal Mocenni,

The cardinal, who has been confined to his rooms for a long time with rheumatic gout, is subject to violent fits of irritation, somewhat trying to the patience of his servants and his visitors. One morning his eminence, who is an inveterate smoker, lay on a divan in his study puffing away at a pipe of Turkish tobacco and deeply absorbed in a book. Presently a gentle knock was heard at the door. The cardinal, paying no heed, continued to read. A louder knock followed, but the old prelate did not want to be disturbed, so he budged not. A third knock was loud and prolonged.

The cardinal raised himself in wrath flung the book to the floor and shouted: "Who the deuce is this bothersome rascal? Come in!"

The door swung back on its hinger and in walked the white-robed figure of Pius X. His holiness was as much amused at his reception as the cardinal 1886 14th Street Morthwest Appert T. Dangles, Mgr. Cardinal Gibbons, Primate of Catholis Church in America, Gives Counsel of Peace to Workmen and Employers.

New York Special. The New York World has obtained at article from Cardinal Gibbons, of Baltimore, on the relations of labor and capital, from which we extract the following paragraphs:

"I deeply deplore the present attitude of labor and capital. I have never questioned the right of workingmen to organize. Indeed, I am a firm believer in the efficacy of organization, especially when it is applied to working men and women. It is the one method by meant of which wage-earners may better their condition and enforce their rights.

"But such organization should be brought about and maintained by peaceable methods and without force to individuals. To attempt to coerce men and women to join the unions by declaring that those who do not join them shall not be employed in the same work with those who do belong is to take a ster which, in my opinion, will ultimately result in disaster to the unions, especially when accompanied by physical force, as is too often the case in recent labor dis-

"These acts of violence, whether com mitted by members of the unions or those who sympathize with them, can have but one effect-the alienation of many who are now consistent friends of the workingmen and believers in their right to organize for their own protection.

"My attitude in this respect has always been clearly defined. I believe not only in the right of workingmen to organize, but I believe it to be their duty to do so. Membership in such organizations should, however, be purely voluntary. Anything resembling coercion in that connection should not for a moment be tolerated, whether that coercion be moral or physical.

"It may also be said that the course of the leaders of the unions in denying to non-union workmen the right to seek and obtain employment whenever and wherever the nonunionists see fit, is to no little extent responsible for the many acts of lawlessness which are committed by outsiders, who are but carrying to its logical conclusion the indefensible position of the organization and labor leaders in that respect.

HOUSE HAS SAD TALE

ABODE WHERE JEFF DAVIS WED TELLS PATHETIC STORY.

Less Than Three Months After Romantic Marriage in Quaint Domicile Bride Dies of Malaria in a Mississippi Swamp.

The ifttle old frame house that stands amid great beech trees in the rear of an imposing structure of recent date near Crescent hill, Ky., and a record in the Jefferson county court are all that is left to tell of a romance involving famous names that was consummated 69 years ago."

It is little known by Louisville people that in this house, which is now used as servant quarters, Jefferson Davis afterward president of the confederacy, on June 17, 1835, married Miss Knox Taylor, daughter of Gen. Zachary Tayior, afterward conqueror of Mexico and president of the United States.

In the Jefferson county court's archives there is a record of marriages for 1835 which contains the following: "Jefferson Davis and Miss Knox Taylor, of legal age, daughter of Zachary Taylor.'

It was a romance with a sad sequel. Davis took his bride to his plantation in Mississippi. The climate was not favorable and the young woman, accustomed to the purer air of Kentucky, could not stand the miasmatic exhalations of the swamps. Soon after her arrival in Mississippi she grew ill, stricken with malarial fever. Within three months of the time she became a bride she was dead. The pathetic sequel makes Gen. Tay lor's objections to the wedding seem to have been due to the prophetic feelings of a devoted father. He strongly disapproved of the match between his daughter and Jefferson Davis, who was then a soldier, with nothing to indicate the great, though mournful, career that was before him.

This opposition was not due to dislike or mistrust of Davis, it seems, but to Gen. Taylor's fear that as the wife of a gallant soldier, on what was then the frontier, his daughter would be subjected to many nardships.

But Miss Taylor was willing to face any future for the man of her heart. Mrs. Gibson Taylor, her aunt, espoused the cause of the young lovers, and when Miss Taylor came to visit her she added her pleadings to those of her niece. After a long course of persuasion Gen. Taylor, though not relinquishing his objections, was prevailed on to permit the marriage, which took place in the home of Mrs. Gibson Tay: lor. It is not known whether Gen Taylor attended the wedding, though Mr. Hancock Taylor is of the opinion that he was not present.

It was from this house that the young souler and his bride, after the PRECIOUS MINERAL IS DISCOVusual merry-making, congratulations and blessings, set out on a journey with happiness that was so soon to be changed to grief.

Such is the story of long ago that centers around this little house, which now stands to the rear of the residence occupied by Mr. A. Levy on the Brownsboro road.

At the time Jefferson Davis and Miss verandas, built after the then prevailing style for southern homes. Now it been transformed into a cottage.

National Bar Association Has Been Asked to Urge Congress Enact Stringent Law.

In a report to the American Bar association Walter S. Logan of the committee on commercial law recommends the enactment by congress of a law which it is believed will serve as a barrier against the overcapitalization of trusts and squeeze the water out of such combinations as the Steel trust.

ERED IN A SECRET CAVE.

Find Is Made in Effort to Locate Jewels Said to Have Been Stolen from France in 1872 and Concealed Near Berryville.

Gold has been discovered near Berryville. Va., which assays $12 a ton; but it is believed that it will become more valuable as the vein is followed. The discovery was made in an effort to locate jewels said to have been stolen from France in 1872. For 30 years there have been stories of these jewels having been concealed in the vicinity.

Town. With him was a man servant. dark secret. After he had lived in Batde Town some time he moved to Winchester and later to Charlestown, W. Va. Then he disappeared and his abiding place was unknown. He was seen

About this time there came a story from France to America of the theft of the jewels. It was said that they were stolen by a French nobleman who ing the people of France to riot. Suspicion was directed toward the Frenchman who had lived at Berryville. Detectives came from New York and and become almost useless." other cities, but so well hidden were the Frenchman and his servant that neither was found. For some months the detectives searched, but to no avail.

Living just outside Berryvile is Mrs. Hattie Dortcher, a woman of excellent standing in the community. While visiting an old school friend in Washington Mrs. Dortcher was introduced to a blind woman fortune teller. She told Mrs. Dortcher that there was great wealth to be found in a cave on her farm and told her how the cave could be found.

Going into the cave, men employed by Mrs. Dortcher found a skeleton of a man half a mile from the entrance They discovered an iron box, cooking utensils and a river that flowed underground with such swiftness that no man could swim against it. Workmen pledged to secrecy were employed to dig in the cave, and in their digging they came upon a vein of gold, the first discovered in this part of the country. The gold was sent to Washington, and the first assay was $10 a ton. Then the vein became richer, and the second assay was $12 a ton.

So hard was the gold to obtain in this parrow and dark cave that the $12 assay would not pay, but Mrs. Dortcher did not abandon the work. Men are still working on the vein, and other men are endeavoring to effect s crossing of the river. These efforts have failed thus far, but the Dortchers are confident that when they are succonstul the jewels stolen from France

VIRGINIA GOLD ORE. LITTLE TOE WILL VANISH.

No Cause for Alarm, However, as Disappearance Takes Place 10,-000 Years Hence.

Dr. George F. Shrady, of New York, in commenting on the theory of Sir John Murray that the little toe would eventually disappear, said that such a thing might happen if the custom of compressing and distorting the foot within the confines of a shoe continues.

"The theory of the disappearance of the little toe within the next 10,000 years," he said, "is legitimately based upon Darwin's teachings. Disuse of certain parts of the body and their elimination go hand in hand with evolution. Disuse of a part causes its weakening and gradual elimination. The principle of disuse is well exemplified in the foot. es are so spread out to support in to Berryville, then known as Battle arch of the foot and balance the body. CONSUL'S REPORT SPICY.

It Deals in Many Fascinating Sub jects, Aloes and Incense Being Among Them.

"Aloes, civet, myrrh and incense" are the fascinating subjects discussed in a report from Consul Masterson at Aden, according to the Portland Oregonian. It seems strange that such things should be regarded as mere arti-cles of commerce, but so it is. Mr. Masterson says that Aden is the export market of these four substances and that no other port can ever oust it. Of aloes Aden last year exported 31,-696 pounds, nearly all of it going to London. Civet, which is one of the essential ingredients of nearly every high-grade perfume made, is taken from the pouch of the civet cat, an animal found in Abyssinia. The annual production of civet ranges from 250 to 300 pounds, and about half of this amount is shipped to New York. The price at Aden is from $1.60 to $3.24 an ounce, according to purity. Myrrh is principally used as an ingredient in inported from Aden is about 1,344,000 pounds. A strange use of myrrh is made by the Abyssinian hunters, who mear their bodies with it before hunting elephants, in the belief that their guarry will not attack them on account of the smell.

KATTENS ARE BORN IN TREE

Maltese Cat Selects Novel Place for Birth of Progeny-Removed to Old Wash Boiler.

Those who are familiar with cats know that when the time approaches for a member of the feline race to bring forth her young the cat is very apt to seek some secluded place and is averse to taking any place prepared for ner in a nice box or other receptacle. They seek out-of-the-way places, and in many cases the kittens are not easily found. It would seem that the limit of originality had been reached, however, by Drusilla, a handsome Maltese cat, owned by Mrs. Hubbard Waldo, of Glastonbury, Conn. The cat has had her numerous progeny heretofore in various places, a barrel in the rear attic, a lower shelf of a house cupboard, the haymow, a box of shavings and many now forgotten other places. But this time she made a new departure. She was not seen at the house from Saturday night until late Sunday evening, when she came to get something to eat. It was surmised that the kittens were born, and search was made Monday morning in former places, but without success.

Late Monday afternoon Drusilla was noticed in the orchard about 100 feet from the house. She was watched and seen to jump on a tree and climb into a hole about four feet from the ground. There was a decayed place in the tree, reaching down about 33 The hole is of oblong shape, wheeling *50.05 a.m. *7.30 p.m. 5x71/2 inches. The cat was undisturbed until Tuesday morning, when Mrs. Waldo went to the tree and looked in. There was the cat purring away contentedly with seven little kittens. Later when Drusilla came to the house to get her breakfast the kittens were removed and brought to the house and placed in an old wash boiler, the nursery of an innumerable line of their predecessors. .The cat submitted gracefully to the change of loca-

MOONSHINERS IN MISSOURI.

Out of One Dollar's Worth of Material Distillers Turn Out Forty Gallons of Whisky.

It is not generally known, according to the Kansas City Journal, that considerable moonshine whisky is made in Southwest Missouri. Detective James Rosche of Carthage has arrested several proprietors of illicit stills recently. Mr. Rosche says that Missourl moonshiners make big profits as long as Uncle Sam lets them alone. He says they "take one gallon of cheap, black molasses, which costs about 30 cents two bushels of meal, at an averaeg cost of 65 cents per bushel, and some water. This is made into a mash, allowed to ferment and the stuff then goes through the process of evapora-

This amount of molasses and meal, with a sufficient amount of water added, makes 40 gallons of moonshine, which is sold for two dollars per gallon. The men who engage in the illicit distilling of whisky are usually of the more ignorant class. That is, they are uneducated, but what they lack in book learning they make up in shrewdness that cannot be learned in school. Most of the men engaged in their business are desperate fellows and do not hesitate to defend their lib erty with the use of guns.

CATCH AN UGLY MONSTER

New Jersey Fishermen Let Hideous Thing Go for Seashore Attraction for the Summer.

Richard Harris sends word from Hope Creek, N. J., that he and his shad crew caught in their net a monstes, the line of which has never been seen before in the bay. It was let go alive in the hope that it might find its way to some scarde resort and be captured is a season attraction.

Harris describes the monster as "the uglies! and most repulsive ever created." Its shape was triangular, about 18 inches broad at the head and graduated to the tail to a width of five inches, its length was about four feet six inches, of a dirt color, and its flesh was soft and flabby. On top of the head was a horn seven inches long There were three rows of teeth about a half inch in each jaw, and the mouth was big enough to take in a water bucket.

Paola Society Being Formed in Holyoke, Mass., as an Antidote for Men's Organizations.

Information comes from Holyoke, Mass., that the women of that city are Miss Jameson, of Rochester, Becomes on the verge of organizing a unique club, truly original in its purpose. It will be known as the Paola Social society. Membership in the new organization will be confined at its institution to women whose husbands are associated with social organizations generally recognized as clubs, thereby tending to irregular home attendance.

The Paola society will primarily insist upon the rights of wives, among them being given liberty to absent themselves from home at pleasure and the adoption of rules and regulations governing their house duties in lines of labor unions of the better class and similar organizations. The two purposes in mind, the promoters say, are not so much to abolish the Indians and conduct services for club life, but to impress husbands with them on occasional Sundays. Because a stronger fondness for home ties and of her interest in them and her friendto minimize at the same time the labor ship, which they have observed for of housekeepers. Every night after sundown the dogs are brought out for an airing. Each dog is tied to a peg driven in the sidewalk, and the row of dogs stretches nearly the length of the block. Then, like the ringmaster in a circus, he gets in front of his canines with a large whip and puts them through various stunts.

Some of the animals, cats and goats as well, he has trained to a nicety, and, wholly unconscious of the crowd that nightly congregates to witness the Birth of an Heir to Throne of Italy "performance," this animal educator goes quietly about his work as if there was no one within miles of him.

This is his sole occupation. Frequently managers of animal shows and trick comedians have offered him large sums of money for some of his animals, but he would rather part with his life than lose one of his pets.

Although he has had his animal school in the locality for a number of years, not one of his neighbors has had occasion to complain to the authorities that he is a nuisance.

German Government Anxious to Se eure Far-Famed Collection of the Iron Chancellor.

The death of Herbert Bismarck in Berlin puts a stop to the chief labor of his latter years, sorting and editing his father's immense collection of papers. The interesting books issued under the care of Herbert Bismarck in the last five years are only the result of dippings into this immense store.

At his death 17 large cases of pap ra had st'll to be sorted. It is difficult to know to whom this work will now be intrusted, and the kaiser is desperately anxious on the point. The unusual and picturesque ceremony of being adopted by an Indian tribe is the novel experience that came during last summer to one Rochester, Y., young women.

A strange rule among the clans is the clan of the mother. They not only call her mother, but they call all her sisters mother, and they call her sisters' children brothers and sisters. This is the reason they do not marry in their own clan. If marriages are unhappy, the parties are at liberty to marry again, and the mother has the sole right to the disposal of the children.

NEW SON ENDS LONG FEUD

Concludes Bitter Rivalry Between Mothers.

The birth of an heir to the throne of has been the bitterest experience of Queen Helena's married life. Her disappointment as a mother meant the success of her most dreaded rival, that other Helen, Duchess d'Aosta, whose lusty son was destined for the crown. The Montenegrin princess, who was once intended for the bride of the czar of Russia, had literally captured a king by the beauty which served her in place of dower. The daughter of the poorest prince in Europe, she was regarded as a dangerous detriment in the matrimonial market, and her marriage to the prince of Naples took place when she was 27 years old. When in two years she was still childless. Duchess d'Aosta, whose union had been notably uncongenial presented her husband with a son. It was only in 1901 that the queen of Italy became a mother, and then to a daughter. The second daughter, idolized as her sister was, by the Italian people, was an added grief. But Queen Helena has been the devoted mother of the two little girls. and the future king himself will know no tenderer love than has been lavished on them. Her joy in her own children has made her a lover of all children, and

FATHER AND SON BROUGHT TO GETHER BY STRANGE VISION.

Ogdensburg, N. Y., Man Prompted by Revelation Seeks and Finds Aged Parent-Had Been Absent Forty-Three Years.

A long lost father has been located in Ogdensburg, N. Y., through a dream. The incident is a rather peculiar one, the truth of which is vouched for by the dreamer himself. During the war of the rebellion, Frank Ashley, of Cook's Corners, N. Y., enlisted at the call to arms and marched away. When peace was restored, he returned to his home and resumed work on the farm. But the life he had led in the army made farming a dull occupation to him, and he finally Agency at THE BEE Office. went to Colton, where he engaged as a sawyer in a lumber mill. For a few months his family heard from him regularly, but suddenly all communication ceased, and, as years passed, his family came to the conclusion that he had gone to join his comrades in the life beyondthat he was dead.

One night recently his son, Henry Ashley, aerespected farmer, who was only a youngster when his father left home. dreamed that if he went to Ogdensburg he would find his father. The next morning he related his dream to his wife, who only laughed, putting little reliance in the

Mr. Ashley could not get the dream out of his mind, so at last he determined to come to Ogdensburg, being fully convinced that when he returned to his home he would find his long lost parent. Arriving in the city he made inquiry among relatives, none of whom had heard anything of his father. Finally the young man visited Frank Johnson. customs officer at the Ferry dock, who is also quartermaster of Ransom post, No. 354, G. A. R., in that city, and to him related his story.

There the son was informed that a man named Frank Ashley was at that moment in the city hospital, sent from the soldiers' home at St. Louis, Mo., for treatment. Henry Ashley went to the hospital at once, and after conversing with the patient for a short time he was convinced that his dream had come true—that the sick man was his father.

The senior Ashley could hardly realize that it was his son to whom he was talking, the 43 years that had elapsed during his absence having transformed the child as when last seen into a man of middle age. The recognition was an affecting one. The old man is recovering, and as soon as able will go to the home of his son. He draws a liberal pension and is 76 years old. He had been an inmate of the soldiers' home at St. Louis for a long time.

ELECTRICITY AS AN ETHER Paris Physician Declares He Has Found an Effective and Pleasant Anaesthetic. Dr. S. Ledue, of the Academy of Medicine of Paris, is confident that he has discovered in electricity a substitute for Italy ends a feud which, though silent. | the great anaethetics, chloroform and ether Dr. Ledue began his experiments on dogs, rabbits and pigeons. He employed a current of from 10 to 30 volts, which he interrupted from 100 to 200 times a second. He sent this current through the brain of the animal or bird on which he was experimenting by applying one electrode on the top of the head and the other at the posterior base of the skull. In no case did more than ten minutes elapse before the subject was completely anaesthetized. They recovered immediately when the current ceased, and not one showed any evil effect

So confident was Dr. Ledue that this was a harmless and sure method to produce senselessness to pain that he submitted himself to the experience. An assistant placed one electrode on the doctor's forehead and the other over his spine in the lumbar region, so that the mild but quickly interrupted current was sent through his cerebrum, cerebellum and spinal cord.

In less than ten minutes Dr. Ledue was prefectly anaesthetized; he did not feel the prick of needles nor the burn of a red hot iron; his pupil did not respond to irritation. When the current was shut off he recovered consciousness instantly, and so far from experiencing bad effects, he declared he felt as though he had taken a tonic.

CUPID ENDANGERS ARMY.

General Corbin Sees Demoralizing Effeet from Marriages on Uncle Sam's Forces.

Cupid threatens to demoralize the army of the United States more effectually than it ever was demoralized by armed foes. This is the opinion of Adjt. Gen. Henry C. Corbin, commanding the Atlantic division and department of the east. His report on the subject was made public recently by the war department.

"The army is overmarried," the report says. "Marriage of army officers who have made no proper provision for assuming the responsibility is hurtful both to the army and the officers. I am firmly of the opinion that no officer should enter the marriage relation without first getting permission from the war department."

Gen. Corbin advocates an increase in the pay of such non-commissioner officers and men in the artillery service as have shown themselves expert artillerists, and he strongly advocates the reestablishment of the army canteen.
